

Bullying and Violence: What does race and gender have to do with it?

Drawing on popular media representations of bullying and violence in recent cases of mixed raced girls and women, this talk highlights the peculiar erasure of race and racism in bullying and cyberbullying discourse. What do we miss when racial factors are overlooked and ignored, especially when intersectional theory tells us that sexism and violence is almost always underwritten by race, racisms and racial violence?

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 2014, 6:00 – 9:00 PM

6:00pm - 7:30pm: Lecture, Council Chambers

7:30pm: Reception, Grand Hall

Surrey City Hall, 13450 - 104 Avenue, Surrey, BC

KEYNOTE SPEAKER:

Dr. Jo-Anne Lee, University of Victoria,
Associate Professor Women's Studies

To register by October 17, 2014 please visit here:

<http://websurvey.sfu.ca/survey/181287642>

Participants are invited to a reception following the lecture.
No beverages or food allowed inside Council Chambers – only water.
Reception to be held in Grand Hall.

Organized by SFU's Faculty of Health Sciences. This public lecture is funded through an endowment provided by the Surrey Fire Fighters Charitable Society and Sherrold and Marina Haddad.